ACTIVITY IN CHICAGO TO-DAY—LEADERS ALREADY ON THE GROUND.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Congressional leaders of the national convention continue to arrive in struggling detachments. One-half of the Louisiana delegation arrived this morning and the entire Iowa delegation, numbering 26, came later in the day. Quite a number of the leaders reached the city late last night. The delegates are busy with an activity and examination at the hotels which discuss general conditions of the country and the party. Some of the delegates could not impart.

National committee members W. L. Scott, Gen. Springfield, and Wm. F. Grady, were among those who were early on the scene this morning. Ex-Gov. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, was observed in the city last night. Ex-Senator James H. Ferguson, of Texas, in consultation with advanced advocates of revenue reform. Gov. Morton declares that the party must, "in the future, declare unqualifiedly for return of the tariff laws."

Congressman Morrison said that he believed with

The New York Times' delegation hung out its red banner at the Palmer house this morning and the New York county democracy also hoisted their flag. The delegation gravitates very largely the interest centered

A New Weather Bureau.
From the Terre Haute Express.

"What do you think of the weather as it is and what it will be?" asked the reporter of his old friend, the trapper. "The weather, I guess, will take care of itself. But I tell you what it is, we are going to have some mighty hot weather this summer. Before it is over we will all feel like going swimming. Now, I tell you what to do. When the new moon, if its horns are hanging up and down, it is a shower for the next three or four weeks. If the horns are on a level, look out for dry. If the moon is far in the south when it gets full, look out for heat."

three weeks. A man needn't get fooled much on the weather if he watches the sun and moon. If the sky is very red at sunrise in the morning, look out for summer showers and pleasant weather. If the sun is very red at sunset, look out for dry weather. If the sun shines with a glowing red tinge, it means hot weather. If cows seek the shade, it not only means that it is hot, but will be still hotter. I'll tell you one thing that never fails: If cows are thick in the cornbels, it means a good summer; if they are thin, it means a poor one. There's very scarce this spring, and haven't afforded farner boys much sport. Turkeys quit gobbling early this spring, which means a long, dry summer."

San Francisco Muscle Stealing
From the San Francisco Argonaut.
Athletes here obtained much gold in San Francisco.

also. We are perched upon the edge of the sea, and a boat race is comparatively unknown thing. A race boat is a curio. There is a little desultory training going on at the Olympic Club, but our young men generally are flaccid and soft-muscled. The wheelmen in the east sustain three papers, and have become a really powerful body of men. It is not unusual for a man to make the summer tour of New England—a tour which has become all the rage on a bicycle or a tricycle. Here there are no tri-cycles, and the bicycle is the chief mode of locomotion. Tennis, a game which has assumed national importance in England, and is a serious component part of a gentleman's life on the Atlantic seaboard, is comparatively unknown here. A few clubs exist, but it is up to the post, but they are compelled to go to Long Beach, California, to play.

climate, barring our late unusual June weather, will admit of its being played outdoors 300 days in the year. Why will not some philanthropic and energetic person, not ready to build, but content to tennis courts and rent them to the tennis clubs, who cheat themselves by playing indoors? It would be a physical benefaction to the race. We are degenerating for lack of exercise. We are becoming listless, and our minds will grow flabby with our bodies. There is no way to cure our nervous prostration and softening of the brain — our two perennial plagues — except by outdoor exercise.

Why Boys Shine.

From the Popular Science Monthly.

Place a child (because the pupils of children are large), and by preference a blonde, at a distance of ten or fifteen feet from a lamp which to the only source of light in a room, and cause it to look at some object in the direction of the lamp, turning the eye you wish to look at slightly inward toward the nose. Now put your own eye close behind the lamp flame, with a card between it and the flame. If you will then look close by the edge of the flame covered with a card, you will see a perfectly black pupil, a red-yellow-white circle. If the eye happens to be hypermetropic, you will be able to see the red reflex when your own eye is at some distance from the eye you wish to examine. This is the true explanation of the luminous appearance of the eyes of some animals when they are in comparative obscurity. It is simply the light reflected from the bottom of their eyes, which is the result of a redish tinge on account of the red blood in the fundus.

back of the semi-transparent retina, and not light that is generated there at all. This reflection is most apparent when the animal is in oblique position, but the observer must be in the right position, and somewhat in the relative position indicated in the above-described experiment—that is, the eye of the observer must be on the same line with the light and the observed eye. The eyes of the myriapod and the animal are hypermetropic, so that the light does not clearly focus on the retina, but the rays of light which have entered them in a very diverging manner.
